Imbokodo Women Who Shape Us

ATHAMBILE MASOLA AND XOLISA GUZULA

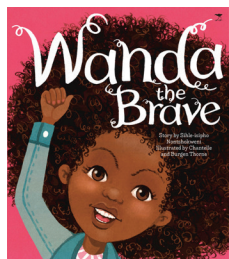

Imbokodo: Women Who Shape Us is a groundbreaking series of books which introduces you to the powerful stories of South African women who have all made their mark and cleared a path for women and girls. These books recognise, acknowledge and honour our heroines and elders from the past and the present.

South African women are silent no more on the roles that they have played in advancing our lives as artists, storytellers, writers, politicians and educationists.

The title 'Imbokodo' was been chosen as it is a Zulu word that means 'rock' and is often used in the saying 'Wathint' Abafazi, Wathint' Imbokodo!', which means 'You Strike a Women, You Strike a Rock!'

Coconut

KOPANO MATLWA

An exciting young voice has emerged that reflects the idiosyncratic nature of our young democracy. Coconut is a story that deals with growing up as a black child in a white world. It is the story of black youth who grow up in white neighbourhoods, go to private schools and have white friends. Fitting in, however, comes at the cost of one's blackness – too white for black, and too black for white.
